The Honorable Dianne Feinstein Chairman, Ranking Member, Subcommittee on Energy and
and Water Development
U.S. Senate Committee on Appropriations
Washington, DC 20510

Dear Chairman Simpson, Ranking Member Kaptur, Chairman Alexander, and Ranking Member Feinstein,

As organizations and businesses that work to advance residential energy efficiency, we are writing in support of at least level funding during the remainder of Fiscal Year (FY) 2017 and in FY2018 for the U.S. Department of Energy (DOE)'s residential programs at the Building Technology Office and Weatherization and Intergovernmental Activities. These programs return benefits and savings to American homeowners, consumers, and businesses many times more than the public's investment. We urge you to maintain at least the current level of funding and work with the new administration to ensure these programs continue to support increased economic and energy productivity.

Energy efficiency does more than cut waste and save consumers money on their utility bills - it employs 1.9 million Americans. In fact, energy efficiency is by far the largest sector in the U.S. clean economy – three out of every four clean energy jobs is an energy efficiency job. Furthermore, most of these jobs are created by small businesses. Of the 165,000 U.S. companies engaged in energy efficiency, 70% of them have 10 or fewer employees. Forty percent of energy efficiency jobs in the U.S. deal with installation of energy efficiency products. These are the men and women that come to people's homes and businesses installing insulation, new technologies, and improving the efficiency of the building envelope, among many other measures. "Boots on the ground" in neighborhoods and cities all across the country, these jobs are inherently local and cannot be exported.

Residential programs currently make up only $23 million of the $200.5 million that funds the Building Technology Office (BTO). However, these funds are crucial to supporting innovative programs that help Americans increase the energy efficiency of their homes. Programs like Home Performance with Energy Star which advances contractor engagement in high efficiency equipment installations, Home Energy Score which helps ensure that energy efficiency is valued in real estate transactions, and HPXML which simplifies the methodology for collecting and transferring data – are just a few examples of these crucial residential programs within BTO. We respectfully request continued funding of $200.5 million for BTO and $23 million for Residential Building Integration.

U.S. DOE's Weatherization and Intergovernmental Activities, which includes the Weatherization Assistance Program and the State Energy Program, is also vital in supporting the deployment of energy efficiency and clean energy technologies and practices in partnership with state, local, and territorial governments. The Weatherization Assistance Program works to increase the efficiency of the homes of low income homeowners, helping states leverage utility dollars with federal assistance. A recent peer-reviewed study from the Oak Ridge National Laboratory found that the program is cost-effective at even conservative levels of evaluation. Each dollar that goes toward weatherization assistance yields at least $2.30 in benefits, and by some estimates as much as $4.10 to the home and society. Through this vital program, U.S. DOE has helped improve the energy efficiency of homes for over seven million low-income and rural Americans, who are particularly susceptible to volatile energy prices and higher utility bills. In addition, a recent report from E4TheFuture references a study showing 12% fewer asthma-related emergency room visits and a 48% decline in poor health among adults in households receiving DOE-funded weatherization assistance. We respectfully urge continued funding of $215 million for the Weatherization Assistance Program.

The State Energy Program (SEP) provides assistance to states regarding development of energy efficiency projects and supports private sector energy innovations. This program yields benefits that far outweigh the relatively nominal outlays appropriated by Congress. The Oak Ridge National Laboratory found that every dollar invested in SEP by the federal government yields over $10 leveraged for energy-related economic development. SEP has been crucial in helping states improve efficiency in hospitals and schools, establish business incubators and job training programs, and establish relationships with energy service companies and small businesses to implement cost-effective energy efficiency programs across their state. We respectfully request continued funding of $50 million for SEP.

Again, we urge the Subcommittee to support these important energy efficiency programs at U.S. DOE in FY2017 and FY2018. Thank you in advance for your consideration of this request. Please do not hesitate to contact Kara Saul Rinaldi at 202.276.1773 or kara@anndyl.com with any questions or for more information. The following signatories are organized alphabetically by state.

Many of this letter's signatories work at companies and organizations across the United States that advance residential energy efficiency including, but not limited to, the 1,125 listed below the signatures.

Sincerely,
